

THE NAKED SINGULARITY

Chez Robeson, Success!

“As always, the food was excellent...” – Dr. Uwe Tauber

“Outstanding production!!!” – Chris Thomas

Chez Robeson was held this past Tuesday, April 17, and, as usual, the annual SPS fundraiser was a great success! If you weren't there, you should have been, but we'll fill you in anyways. May you see the error in your ways and join us for another great time next year.

Faculty, staff, graduate students and their families enjoyed a delicious chili dinner prepared and served by SPS members and a scrumptious desert of mini pies with homemade ice cream. Students from all grades, freshmen and upperclassmen alike, performed skits highlighting the quirky nature, unusual teaching styles, and well documented idiosyncrasies of their favorite professors. This year, senior Sam Rosenkrantz played “Joe Desic” (a wannabe Crocodile Hunter) searching Robeson Hall for the new department head, Prof. Piilonen.

Along the way, Desic came across Prof. Pleimling surrounded by during office hours, Prof. Vogelaar in his uncooperative intermediate lab, Prof. Sharpe performing the soon to be famous “Sharpe split,” and Prof Pitt explaining “maysurements.” Professors Simonetti, Scarola, Minic, Huber, and Takeuchi were given no quarter, all comically presented. Scenes were separated by commercial breaks featuring Prof. Tauber and those graduate students and faculty who can't seem to kick their addiction to Robeson Hall.

Finally, Desic tracks Piilonen down, but their conversation what changes will be made around the department is interrupted as Beate, followed, as always, by Zia, return from Iowa. Sick of the corn and tornados, Beate battled Piilonen to try to regain her former title. Piilonen is ultimately victorious, securing his rightful role as the head of Robeson. The night ended with Prof. Piilonen starting what will hopefully be a new tradition with his own routine: the top ten reasons for forgetting your homework now hangs proudly in the SPS lounge! Maybe next year the other Professors can help him out and fight back with their own satire.

A huge thank you to all the students who helped write skits, cook and serve dinner, and perform. Special thanks to Kristen Brown who once again made a delicious dessert. Most importantly a huge thank you to the faculty and staff whose generous donations will allow SPS to continue hosting beloved events like coffee and doughnuts. SPS wouldn't exist without your support!

-Sara Case

CHEZ ROBESON, YEP! Planning for next years event starts now. Believe it or not we set a date and reserve a spot a year in advance. This needs to be passed to some new officers too! Come to the next SPS meeting.

SPS MEETING! YReally important meeting guys. Get started on an active semester next year by meeting, choosing, and even becoming next years officers. Elections will be held at the last SPS meeting of the semester 4/26 at 7PM

COFFEE AND DONUTS! We have one more folks so get your last couple doses of doughnut before the long hot summer. You know what else!!! May 3rd will be an epic double dose of doughnuts and studying.